

OCTOBERMAN

SELECTED PRESS

PITCHFORK - "Like an old wool sweater you pull right on to ward off a cold day."

UNCUT (UK) - "Like a sunnier Elliott Smith or Sparklehorse."

AMERICANA-UK (Best album of 2007) - "Octoberman's Marc Morrisette has to be one of the great up and coming Americana songwriters of our times... Simply put Run From Safety is that great, and for that reason a worthy recipient of Americana UK's best album of 2007."

SUBBA-CULTCHA.COM (UK) - "In every sense, Octoberman are going far."

NOW MAGAZINE - "Octoberman's Marc Morrisette gets adventurous on his third outing, and the risks pay off."

IHEARTMUSIC.NET - "Which really is the genius of this album. It's easy to do sad; it's a lot harder to make sad listenable. With Fortresses, Octoberman manages to make it sound incredibly gorgeous." - I Heart Music (Blog)

GEORGIA STRAIGHT (Best Of Vancouver 2007 Issue) - "Run From Safety begins with the urgency of a film noir in which a framed man is forced to leave town under cover of darkness. Then Octoberman's second disc turns into a big-sky, modern-day western as Marc Morrisette's voice becomes wistful, trumpet blends with harmonica, acoustic guitar, and backup vocals, and songs like "No Qualms" roll by like tumbleweeds."

EDMONTON JOURNAL - "Run From Safety is a wandering, meditative album that not only brings out what Octoberman is capable of, but also acts as a model for the type of musical nourishment the alt-folk genre should provide."

SEE MAGAZINE - "Beautifully written, beautifully crafted, beautifully produced."
